SUREFIRE SUGGESTIONS FOR A SUCCESSFUL BOOK CLUB!

Tip #1

Tell Them About It!

Hand out invitations to each of your students. If nobody knows, nobody will come.

Spread the word!

- Print or copy the invitation page and post it on your door.
- Post about the club on your class website.
- Tell parents about the club during Parent's Night.

Tip #2

Get the Party Started!

Get your area set up ahead of time. Post signs about the upcoming meeting and invite others to join in—but let them know the area is “reserved.” Put up balloons, decorate, offer refreshments! As new members arrive, have them fill out the Fan Club and Character applications. Get them talking about the story (or the parts) they’ve read—spontaneous questions and answers, and thoughts and responses will make the later discussions livelier and more entertaining!

Ask questions! The C.L.U.E. (Curious Learners Uncovering Evidence) Questions Sheet has a dynamo selection, but we’re sure you and the kids will come up with your own. If there’s time before the meeting, have members fill in copies of the sheet. You can also send copies home for members to fill out as they read next month’s book. Make sure your questions are geared towards the members’ ages and reading levels. Best bet—get the kids to ask their own questions!

Tip #3

Dive into Deep Discussions!

There’s no better way to get kids to love reading than to get them involved in the story! Here are a few suggestions for you, which have come from other Carole Marsh Mysteries book clubs and Carole Marsh classroom visits.

- Design a party theme around the book you’re reading. Check out our activities page on CaroleMarshMysteries.com for ideas!
- Make it a costume party! If you’re reading The Mystery at Disney World, have everyone dress as their favorite Disney character!
- Bring in guests! You probably won’t be able to get the race winner, but if you’re reading The Mystery at the Kentucky Derby, have your local pony ride purveyor come for a visit!
- Look in the accompanying Teacher’s Guide for more ideas. Each Real Kids! Real Places! mystery has its own Teacher’s Guide, and each guide has a wealth of information related to their subject.
- Act it out! Have members put on a “play” using the book as the script. Choose one of the members to be the narrator to read non-dialogue passages.
- Go geographical! Get a United States wall map and supplement that with state and city maps for each mystery. Tack them up on a wall and mark locations with map pins or flags. Use colored string to “tie” the locations together. You can also use sticky arrows and colored markers to follow the characters on their mystery travels!

Tip #4
