The Graveyard Of The Atlantic Mystery

Bring It To Life!

1. Find out more! Divide your book club into two groups. Ask the first group to research all the ships used by the U.S. Coast Guard, and draw the ships on a poster. Ask the second group to research all the airplanes used by the U.S. Coast Guard, and draw the airplanes on a poster. Be sure to label them! Then, ask each group to present its poster to the rest of the book club.
2. Have a seafood feast! Ask some parents to help you make some seafood dishes for your next book club meeting. You might want to sure to include shrimp cocktail, some tasty crabmeat, a tuna casserole, and maybe some fish sticks! Don't forget the cocktail sauce, and some tangy lemonade to drink!
3. Draw it! Draw an underwater ocean scene. Pick fantastic fish with stripes, bright colors, and interesting shapes. Add an octopus and some crawling crabs! Toss in a seahorse! Decorate with coral! Scatter some shells along the ocean floor! It's your very own watery world! When you're finished, decorate your book club meeting room with your creations.
4. Imagine it! Pretend you are a diver exploring a shipwreck off the North Carolina coast. Your pretend ship ran ground in 1885. Was it a merchant ship? Was it a pirate ship? Was it a ship bringing families to America? Imagine the things you might find! Make a list of your "treasures." Exchange papers with other book club members and see who found the most interesting imaginary ship!
